

Saturday eve

Dear Millie

I send by Express to Oakland a box containing a small bottle of that Oxygenaqua. You know you cannot send liquids by mail and as Annie says they do not send express matter out to Berkeley I could contrive no other way to do but to send it to Oakland and notify you, leaving you to contrive to get it as ~~best~~ you may. I don't suppose you could get it from the Express Office Sabbath day, but perhaps you can get some one to call Abundant and carry it out to you. You know you are to hand it to Prof. Sill and he is going to ask Prof. Rising to analyse it. I hope to hear as soon as possible in regard to this matter for Annie will take none till we hear about the result. Indeed she is quite unwilling to or rather I should say incredulous in regard to the matter.

I suppose Charlie had been there and that you have all your fruit etc. I took the fringe from Annie's dress down hoping to get your dress for Charlie to take but it was not ready.

If you would eat your apples and nuts to help out your meager lunches they would be a real treat to you, but if you munch them at irregular hours they will be an injury.

Is not your conscience active enough to regulate this matter?

Nothing new ~~from~~ about Annie.

Mama

Mama.

The package will be directed to you.
